Write an essay on ethics and win $1,000

Nicholas and Anna Ricco Ethics Awards Competition 2015

Through the generosity of long-time donors, Nick and Anna Ricco, this award was created to promote intellectual debate and discussion on ethics as related to students’ areas of study at UNT, their field of vocation or their avocation. The goal is to stimulate the applicants to new heights of reasoning and self-discipline. The ultimate result will be a higher level of ethical understanding in one’s area of study. It is the hope of the donors that students will recognize and better comprehend the need for a higher understanding of ethics in their personal and professional lives.

Eligibility:
• Full or part-time students at UNT
• Undergraduate or graduate student status

Judging will be conducted by an academic panel within your school or college at UNT. Notification will be made to winners on Monday, March 23, 2015 and recognition will be on Honors Day in the spring. One student in each of the thirteen UNT schools and colleges will be awarded $1,000. Go to journalism.unt.edu/Riccoawards.

Deadline is Friday, March 6, 2015 at midnight.

The Nicholas and Anna Ricco Ethics Awards Competition 2015 is coordinated by

Frank W. & Sue Mayborn School of Journalism